

From zero to digital closing hero

Your 3-step approach to a fully digital closing experience

A digital closing offering can help you reduce costs and meet rising consumer expectations in order to stay competitive in our current market environment. Whether or not you're starting from scratch, Blend has you covered with a step-by-step approach to reap the advantages of digital closings as you build out your end-to-end capabilities.

Digital closing stepping stones

A digital closing offering can help you reduce costs and meet rising consumer expectations.

1

Aim for a hybrid closing first

A hybrid closing will allow you to capture some of the benefits of a fully digital one. Some documents are still wet-signed, but the closing package can be reviewed ahead of time, taking some of the burden off of borrowers on signing day. In addition, this strategy enables you to get your partners, such as settlement agents, onboarded.

Blend makes it easy for Settlement Agents and other partners with:

Quick click onboarding

Shared collaboration portal for all parties involved

Real-time doc status

Dedicated support and training

2

Next, introduce eNote

By adding eNote, you can help reduce the time and costs associated with the secondary market:

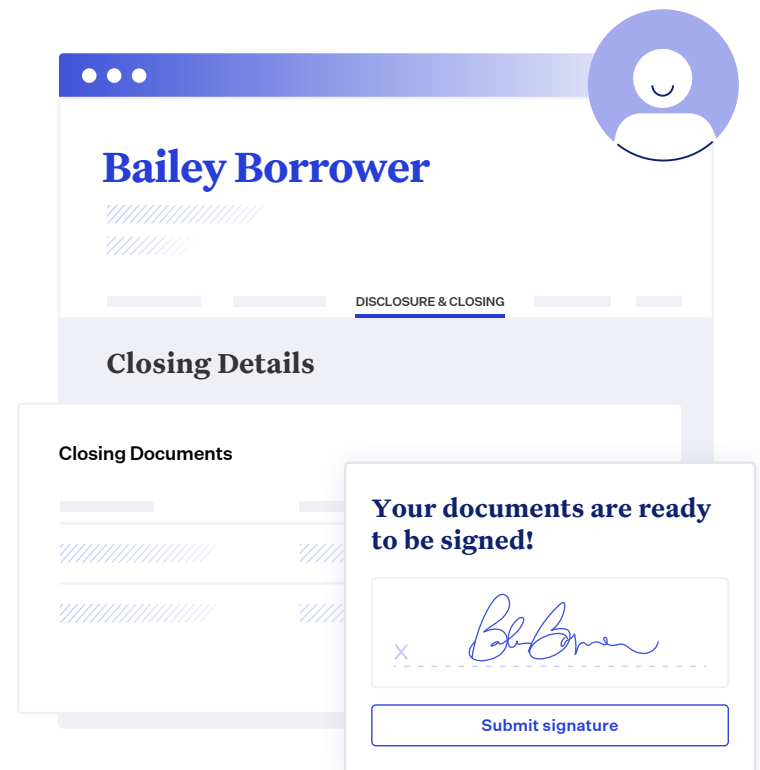

Cut down on post-closing QA work

Fast, secure digital document transportation

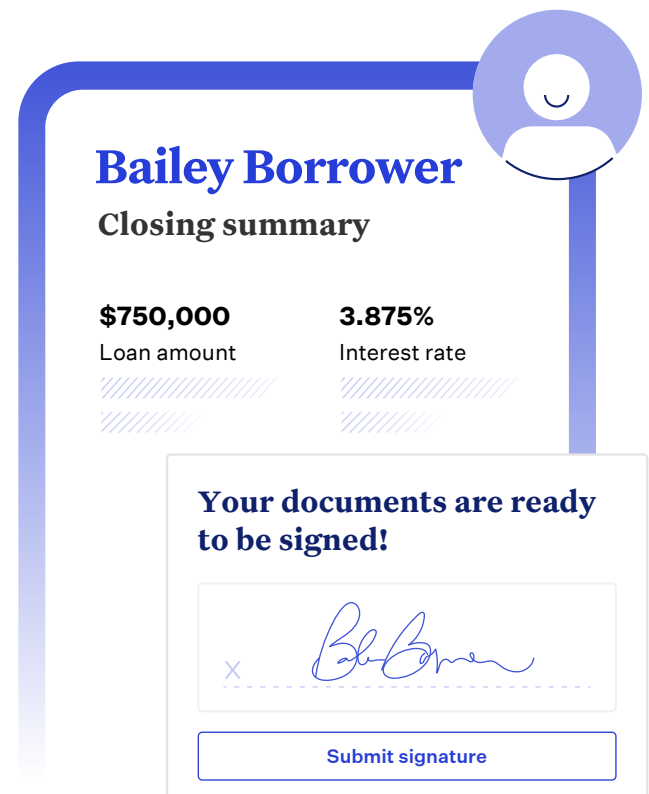

Automatic assignment of eNotes cuts down on the time spent per loan

3

Realize a completely digital close with RON

Remote online notarization (RON) is the final step toward a fully digital closing. With RON, all documents can be signed digitally, making closing day easier for the borrower and your business. Blend Close lets you know at a glance which loans are RON-eligible, so you don't have to wade through the patchwork of jurisdictions and underwriter policies that govern eligibility.

Build toward your digital closing future intelligently with a step-by-step approach. Onboard staff and partners gradually. Measure the impact of each addition. Move forward confidently.

Blend is here to help. Learn more about digital closing with Blend.